AS-1. Hiring Practices

Premier reasonably screens all candidates for employment consistent with industry practice and seeks to hire candidates who are qualified to ensure security of Protected Data.

A. Background Checks

Where permitted by local law, Premier conducts background checks and OIG Exclusions List checks prior to hiring Personnel whose jobs will require handling Protected Data as Premier deems necessary for the protection of such Protected Data. For Personnel in designated jobs requiring high risk Protected Data Access and for other Personnel, periodic background and OIG Exclusion List checks can be required.

B. Restrictive Covenants

All Personnel are required to sign confidentiality agreements as a condition of working for and providing services to Premier. These confidentiality agreements must be completed before access to Premier's Information Systems is allowed.

C. Privacy and Chief Security Positions

When appointing individuals to the positions of Privacy Officer, and Corporate Information Security Officer, Premier seeks to appoint candidates with adequate relevant education and experience to implement and maintain Premier's Global Data Stewardship Program, including the qualifications and experience to perform the specific responsibilities identified for each role in GP-2, "Oversight of the Program".

AS-2. Orientation and Training

A. Training Coordinator

Premier shall designate a person responsible for organizing, coordinating and overseeing administration of its privacy and information security training. The Training Coordinator, together with applicable Privacy Officers, are responsible for ensuring all Personnel are given necessary training on Premier's Program and is responsible for maintaining all training materials and Records.

The Training Coordinator and applicable Privacy Officers, with oversight from the Data Stewardship Committee, are responsible for monitoring the effectiveness of training, ensuring periodic retraining as needed, documenting the completion of required training, and ensuring that the training programs are evaluated and revised as reasonably needed to reflect changes in Premier's Privacy and Data Protection Policies.

B. Training Program

1. Mandatory Training for All Personnel.

Premier has a Training Program to meet the requirements of its Program. Premier trains all Personnel concerning its Program as necessary and appropriate to enable the Personnel member to carry out his or her specific functions in accordance with Applicable Law and, as appropriate, contractual obligations. Personnel are required to attend all training programs designated as "mandatory". Premier will take attendance to ensure that all Personnel have received such mandatory training. Failure to attend such mandatory training may subject Premier Personnel to disciplinary action and non-Premier Personnel to termination.

2. Vendor and Subcontractors.

Premier is not required to train either vendors or subcontractors or their respective personnel unless such personnel are under the direct control of Premier and designated as Personnel under the Program.

3. Content of Training.

Some training may be customized to reflect the specific duties and responsibilities of Personnel that attend. For example, the focus of training for Personnel handling Protected Health Information may be different in emphasis than training for members of Premier's Information Technology (or "IT") Department who do not handle Protected Health Information. Examples of training content may include:

- Appropriate physical and electronic safeguards for Protected Data
- Privacy Event reporting requirements
- Permitted processing of Protected Data
- Acceptable uses of Premier's technological infrastructure and computer equipment

- Acceptable practices for online conduct, including Social Media activity
- Regarding Protected Health Information:
 - Permitted Uses and Disclosures of Protected Health Information;
 - Requirement to enter into Business Associate Agreements with, as appropriate, Covered Entities and Business Associates;
 - Requirement to enter into Business Associate Agreements and Downstream Subcontractor Agreements with Business Associates and Business Associate Subcontractors, respectively;
 - Requirement to return/destroy or continue to safeguard Protected Health Information upon termination of Business Associate Agreements and Downstream Subcontractor Agreements; and
 - Potential rights of Covered Entity customers (e.g., access to records, accounting for Disclosures, amendment of records).
- Fraud, waste, and abuse

C. Orientation

Premier provides all new Premier Personnel with a copy of Premier's Program at the time of hire or within a reasonable time thereafter. For existing Premier Personnel (those hired prior to implementation of the Policies), Premier ensures all such existing Personnel, as well as all non-Premier Personnel receive a copy of the Program upon implementation. Personnel are required to acknowledge in writing receipt of the Program.¹ In the event a Personnel member does not acknowledge the Program, use of a user id to use or access information constitutes the user's acknowledgement to abide by the Program, processes and procedures and standards.

D. New Hire Training

All new Personnel receive training on Premier's Program during the Personnel member's orientation or within a reasonable time thereafter. Such training includes education and training on the proper manner in which to safeguard Protected Data, including use of computer systems, the importance of Protected Data security and restrictions on the use of or access to Protected Data. The orientation and training materials include the name and contact information for the Privacy Officers and the Corporate Information Security Officer.

Personnel training includes a description of Protected Data and Premier's obligation to secure and protect Records containing Protected Data. Personnel are trained to limit the amount of Protected Data collected and the length of time the Records containing Protected Data are retained to that reasonably necessary to accomplish the legitimate business purpose for which it is collected. Training also includes review of the disciplinary measures which result from unauthorized access or use of Protected Data.

Personnel training also includes a description of the procedure Personnel follow in the event of a Privacy Event. Personnel are responsible for retaining their personal copy of the Privacy Event Policies and following the procedure anytime they believe there has been a Privacy Event. Premier also keeps a copy of the Privacy Event Policies in a place reasonably accessible to all Personnel (i.e., on its intranet or posted in a central location).

E. Periodic Training

Premier provides mandatory, periodic training to Personnel who have access to Protected Data. Training occurs annually, or more frequently as necessary. The Privacy Officers reviews training materials regularly and updates training materials if necessary, including after Premier materially modifies the privacy and security systems or procedures. Personnel are made aware of all material changes to training materials or policies regarding Protected Data.

F. Training Records

Every training attendee is required to cooperate with procedures to document and evidence their understanding of the Program and its Policies and to confirm their acceptance of responsibility for compliance. Premier will maintain all certifications, including those for non-Premier employees, in its compliance files and in each Premier employee's respective personnel file for a period of at least six (6) years from the date of the certification. Premier will make such certifications available for inspection by regulatory authorities, as appropriate.

Premier will document the time, date, place and content of each training session, as well as the Personnel who attended each training session. The appropriate Privacy Officer will maintain such documentation in Premier's privacy and information security compliance files for a period of at least six (6) years from the date of the training session and make such documentation available for inspection by regulatory authorities, as appropriate.

AS-3. Limits on Collection, Access and Retention of Protected Data

A. Limits on Collection

Premier periodically reviews its data collection procedures to limit the collection of Protected Data from customers, Personnel, and any other individuals for which it is reasonably necessary in order to conduct the business of Premier or the business of a customer or to carry out its legal responsibilities, including complying with Applicable Law.

B. Limits on Access

To accomplish the objectives of this Program, Premier authorizes Access to Protected Data to only those Personnel reasonably required to know such information in order to accomplish the legitimate business purpose for which it is Accessed or to comply with Applicable Law. For purposes of this Policy, “Access” means the ability to collect, store, use, process, disclose and dispose of any such information. Premier business units may have specific customized procedures for their Access based on business need.

All Personnel who are given authorization to Access Protected Data must comply with this Program. All unauthorized Access to Protected Data may result in disciplinary measures up to and including termination.

C. Limits on Retention

Premier Policies are reasonably designed to ensure that Records containing Protected Data are appropriately destroyed or disposed of in accordance with these Policies once the reasonable business purposes for maintaining the information have been accomplished. “Record” or “Records” means any material upon which written, drawn, spoken, visual, or electromagnetic information or images are recorded or preserved, regardless of physical form or characteristics.

D. Verification of Identity and Authority

1. Verification of Identity.

(i) General. Premier verifies the identity of a person requesting Protected Data (“Requestor”) and the authority of any Requestor to have access to Protected Data.

(ii) Verification Process. Prior to disclosing Protected Data to a Requestor, Premier will take reasonable steps to verify the identity of the Requestor and the authority of the Requestor to have access to such Protected Data. Unless a Requestor is already known to Premier at the time of the request, Premier must request a driver’s license or other picture identification or other reasonable proof of a Requestor’s identity.

2. Documentation.

When a Disclosure is conditioned on the Requestor’s production of particular documentation, statements, or representations (such as Disclosures for health oversight activities, judicial and administrative proceedings or law enforcement activities), Premier will require the Requestor to provide such documentation, statements, or representations. If such reliance is reasonable under the circumstances, Premier may rely on documentation, statements, or representations that, on their face, meet the applicable requirements.

E. Appropriate Level of Care.

All Personnel must handle Protected Data with the appropriate level of care. The level of care should be consistent with the type of data being handled, such that Public Data requires no specialized protection in handling, while Protected Data should receive the highest level of care and attention.

Whether Personnel are handling Protected Data in physical or electronic formats, Personnel should always maintain control over the Protected Data, or securely store the information for future use, and ensure proper disposal.

When working with electronic devices containing Protected Data, Personnel must secure such electronic devices before leaving such devices unattended (this includes locking computer stations when leaving the office, etc.).

F. Requests for Exceptions and Individual Accommodation.

The requirements in this Program are designed to implement reasonable safeguards against unauthorized Access to Protected Data. Premier recognizes that from time to time, Personnel may seek to use a new technology, device, or business process that may improve their ability to perform services on behalf of Premier or a customer, but that is not otherwise contemplated by these Policies.

In all cases, where a member of Personnel wishes to use a new technology, device or business process that involves Access to Protected Data, the request must be forwarded to the appropriate Privacy Officer, who will vet the request with the Corporate Information Security Officer and/or the Data Stewardship Committee, as the appropriate Privacy Officer deems appropriate.

In evaluating all such requests, the appropriate Privacy Officer is required to assess whether the request can be granted while still maintaining the reasonable safeguards against unauthorized Access to Protected Data required by these Policies and Applicable Law.

Under no circumstances will any such requests for exceptions or individual accommodations be granted without first obtaining approval by the appropriate Privacy Officer.

AS-4. Notice and Consent Regarding Premier's Data Practices.

Premier provides notice to the public, its customers and its Personnel of its data collection practices and obtains appropriate consents when collecting Protected Data in accordance with Applicable Law.

A. Notice To Customers and the Public.

1. Premier maintains Online Privacy Policies that inform the public and users of the Premier website about the types of information collected by Premier, and how Premier generally uses, processes, transfers and discloses such information. By using the Premier website and by providing information to Premier, individuals consent to such collection, use, processing, transfer and disclosure practices.

2. If Premier enters into agreements with its customers for the sale or license of products or services, Premier provides notice in those customer agreements regarding the types of information collected by Premier during the term and how Premier generally uses, processes, transfers and discloses such information (together “Premier Data Practices”). By using the Premier website and by providing information to Premier, individuals consent to such Premier Data Practices.

3. Premier Covered Entity business units each maintain a Notice of Privacy Practices that describe for its patients or member how their health information may be used and disclosed and how the patient or member can get access to this information. Premier Covered Entity business units each provide the Notice of Privacy Practices to their patients or members in accordance with PH-4.I “Notice of Privacy Practices” in Part V, “Protected Health Information Policies”.

B. Notice To Premier Employee Personnel

1. Premier collects information about Premier employee Personnel that is necessary or appropriate in relation to the scope of the services provided to Premier by such Personnel. The types of information Premier generally collects about its Personnel relates to: personnel records; benefits and pension administration; recruitment and background screens (only as permitted by local law); and information necessary for proper administration and management of Premier.

2. In accordance with Applicable Law, Premier provides notice to Personnel about the types of information Premier collects about them, and obtains individual consents regarding Premier's Data Practices with respect to such information in accordance with Applicable Law.

C. Consequences for Refusing Consent or Withdrawing Consent

1. If an individual refuses to give consent or withdraws consent to Premier's Data Practices, Premier may not be able to complete the task for which the information was collected. For example, if a customer refuses to consent to the transfer of data in a particular circumstance, Premier may not be able to fulfill its customer obligations and, in certain cases, the transaction may need to be terminated. Similarly, if a Premier employee refuses to consent to the provision of benefit eligibility information, Premier may not be able to facilitate that employee's application, and benefits may be denied. However, Premier may not condition the provision of care on the signing of an authorization as set forth more fully in Part V, "Protected Health Information Policies".

2. With respect to Premier Personnel, in some circumstances a an employee's refusal to provide consent or a withdrawal of consent, may prevent that employee from performing an essential function of the services he/she is required to perform given his/her role with Premier. In certain unusual circumstances, this could require either a reconfiguring of the role or, if that is not reasonable or appropriate as determined in the sole discretion of Premier, it may result in ending the engagement where appropriate under Applicable Law.

AS-5. Policy on Acceptable Use of Premier's Information Systems

All Personnel are required to read and comply with this Acceptable Use Policy.

A. Scope

This Policy applies to Premier's Information Systems, including all devices that connect to or access Premier's network or that download, process or transmit Protected Data, regardless of whether the device is owned by Premier.

The Policy applies to all Personnel and any other users of Premier's Information Systems. Violation of this Policy may result in disciplinary action, up to and including termination of employment or applicable business arrangement.

B. Purpose

Premier's Acceptable Use Policy governs the connection to and use of Premier's Information Systems. "Information Systems" or "IS" means an interconnected set of information resources under the same direct management control that shares common functionality, including hardware, software, information, data, applications, communications and people. Importantly, the term "Information Systems" includes not only the sum of the parts (e.g., the network), but also the individual parts themselves, including devices connected to the network (e.g., computers, laptops, tablets, and mobile devices).

The purpose of this Policy is to regulate the use of Premier's IS, reduce the risk of harm to Premier's technological infrastructure and to take reasonable steps to safeguard all Protected Data within that infrastructure.

C. Protection of Premier's Information Systems

1. Premier is the Owner of the IS.

Premier is the owner, lessee, or licensee of all components of the IS. This includes PCs and laptops that have been issued by Premier to Personnel for the performance of their jobs.

2. Dual Use Devices.

Premier may permit its Premier employee Personnel to purchase personal devices (such as laptops, smart phones and tablets) for both personal and business reasons ("Dual Use Devices") and request a connection to the IS. Any such connection must be authorized and initiated under the direction and supervision of Premier's IT Department.

By undertaking such a connection to Premier's IS, each such member of Personnel agrees that the Dual Use Device becomes governed by, and subject to, the terms of this Acceptable Use Policy. In addition to these Dual Use Devices, all computer components or software that are not owned or controlled by Premier become subject to this Policy when they are connected by any means to Premier's IS. For example, this includes personal smart phones, tablets and computers at home that are used at any time to access the Premier IS.

3. Reporting Lost or Stolen Devices.

Any member of Personnel who has reason to believe that his or her personal computer, laptop, mobile device (including any Dual Use Device), or software application has been damaged, lost or stolen must immediately inform local IT Department support personnel, or the IT Service Desk.

4. Reasonable Care.

All Personnel are required to exercise reasonable care in the use of Premier's IS. Any member of Personnel not exercising reasonable care may be liable for any damages or loss incurred by Premier.

5. No Changes.

For control and accountability purposes, Premier's IT Department maintains logs of assigned computers. Therefore, Personnel must not "swap" computers with any other Personnel unless authorized to do so.

In addition, Personnel must not make hardware or software changes to Premier's IS except where it is a function of his or her job and where he or she is authorized to do so by the Corporate Information Security Officer.

Similarly, Personnel must not install Premier owned, leased or licensed software to any computer system or network component that is not under the ownership or control of Premier, unless authorized to do so by the Corporate Information Security Officer.

Personnel are prohibited from making any modifications to Premier assets that result in the bypassing of existing security controls, such as loading remote control software or wireless Internet Access that bypasses Premier's Firewall or disabling security features, without the express written permission of the Corporate Information Security Officer. This is particularly important with any encryption of data on portable media

D. No Expectation of Privacy

1. Data on the Premier IS. Personnel should have no expectation of privacy for any use of the IS, or in any information created, modified, stored on, or deleted from Premier-issued devices (including computers, data systems or networks) or Dual Use Devices.

2. Data transmitted when Connected to the IS. Similarly, when non-Premier supplied equipment (such as home computers) are connected to the Premier IS, online activities may be conducted through the Premier network. This means the activity may be logged, and copies of data transmitted, including web pages visited or personal emails sent, may be stored or "cached" on Premier's IS. As a result, Personnel should have no expectation of privacy concerning any information transmitted from non-Premier supplied equipment (such as home computers) when such equipment is connected to Premier's IS.

3. Access for Policy Administration and Enforcement.

To the maximum extent permitted by Applicable Law, authorized Personnel may access and inspect e-mail communications and any other information or data stored on Premier's IS, including all Internet content, for any legitimate business purpose, including without limitation:

- (i) As necessary for the conduct of Premier's business or to protect Premier's commercial interests,
- (ii) To promote the security of Premier's IS and all data contained therein and to support the technical operations of the IS, and
- (iii) To monitor, investigate and ensure compliance with policies or any legal obligation or agreement to which Premier, its clients and its Personnel may be subject.

4. Internet Use. All Internet content accessed may be subject to interception and inspection in furtherance of legitimate business purposes, either randomly or when authorized persons have reason to believe that Premier's IS are being used in contravention of established Policies or Applicable Law, subject to ethical wall, protective order and local law restrictions. The content of Internet searches or "surfing," properly obtained for legitimate business purposes, may be disclosed to Premier's senior management. Personnel should not assume that Internet usage is confidential. Any such monitoring of Internet browsing and Internet-based e-mail communications and any maintenance of resulting data will be limited to the extent necessary to achieve the relevant objective.

5. Discovery; Subpoena. All content stored on or transmitted using Premier's IS, including e-mail messages, are Premier Records and are discoverable in litigation in the same manner and to the same extent as paper files, subject only to specific exceptions such as attorney-client privilege and as set forth in Part V, "Protected Health Information Policies". This Policy will be interpreted and applied in accordance with Applicable Laws.

E. No Illegal Activities

Personnel must not use the IS to conspire to engage in or to conduct illegal activities as covered by Applicable Law. Examples of such prohibited activities include but are not limited to:

- 1. Disclosure of privileged, personal, or proprietary information.
- 2. Unauthorized access to, alteration or deletion of Premier's electronic data or records.
- 3. Violation of securities laws, e.g., use or trafficking in "inside information."
- 4. Violation of intellectual property laws – e.g., piracy of copyrighted materials, software, patents and trademarks.
- 5. Violation of export control laws.

6. Originating or trafficking in any information that aids or abets other unlawful activities.

7. Illegal gambling.

F. Destructive Computer Code and Viruses; Non-standard Software

1. No Personnel shall use Premier's IS to create, propagate or knowingly distribute any computer virus, destructive executable, script, or any other program code that is intended to cause injury to or failure of Premier's Information Systems or any other external information systems.

2. No Personnel shall install or distribute computer code, software or content from untrusted sources. This includes applications, executables or files from the Internet or from portable media such as floppy discs, CD ROMs, USB drives, and other mobile devices.

3. No Personnel shall install any non-standard applications, software or non-approved hardware devices (e.g., USB drives, switches, wireless access points) on any of Premier's IS without receiving advance written approval from Premier's Corporate Information Security Officer or designee. User Support will be limited to standard applications as set forth by the Corporate Information Security Officer or designee.

G. Protection of Confidentiality and Privilege

All Personnel must take reasonable steps to safeguard Protected Data and all confidential business information and to assure their own privacy and the privacy of their colleagues in the workplace. Toward that end:

1. No Personnel shall use an unsecured, unauthorized Internet or any service that makes use of the Internet to store, backup or otherwise transmit Protected Data.

2. No Personnel shall use personal encryption or any other technological means in an effort to subvert policies of Premier.

3. No Personnel shall disclose any information of a personal nature about any other Personnel, unless that Personnel is authorized to do so by the Director of Human Resources.

H. External Communications with Media

All e-mail or Internet communications with the media using any component of Premier's computer systems and networks is reserved for authorized Personnel acting in accordance with Premier's media and public relations policies. "Media" is defined to include any website, blog, forum, or other such medium that receives and/or redistributes information as well as the standard magazine, television, newspaper, etc.

I. Electronic Mail (E-mail)

1. Housekeeping. As a general housekeeping matter, all Premier employee Personnel are strongly encouraged to routinely delete old or unneeded e-mail messages from their files, but only in compliance with the Premier Record Retention Policy and in compliance with any pending Litigation Holds or other litigation obligations. Deleting an e-mail message from your inbox does not automatically and permanently delete that message from Premier's computer systems and networks.

2. "Deleted" Messages. Premier uses a system that maintains copies of e-mail messages regardless of whether they are deleted from a mailbox. These messages are kept for each person for a certain number of days after termination of employment, or longer, in accordance with established IT Department messaging policies and any Premier Document Retention Policies.

3. Limits on e-mail Folders. To keep e-mail space at Premier at manageable levels, limits have been placed on each Premier employee Personnel's mailbox size. Premier employees will receive a warning that their e-mail in-box is approaching the limit; if no action is taken and if the mailbox reaches the quota limit, the employee will be unable to send e-mail messages until the size of his or her mailbox is reduced. If a Premier employee does not know how to permanently delete old or unneeded e-mail, the employee should contact the IT Service Desk.

4. Distribution Lists. No Personnel shall add an external e-mail address to a Premier-wide or any internal distribution list on the Premier IS.

5. E-mail Forwards. Personnel shall use good judgment and reasonable care when forwarding any e-mail to any other Personnel, and should consider privacy issues (e.g., retention of the originator's name in the forward). E-mail forwards to individuals, companies and institutions outside Premier are restricted to legitimate business communications.

J. Unacceptable E-Mail Content

1. Defamatory or False Content. No Personnel shall make use of Premier's e-mail to engage in any internal or external communication that: conveys false, misleading or defamatory information about Premier, its Personnel, its customers, suppliers or vendors. Likewise, when acting as a representative of Premier, no Personnel shall use e-mail to communicate knowingly false or defamatory information about any other individual, company, firm or institution.

2. Other Prohibited Actions:

(i) "Chain Mail." Sending or forwarding non-business-related chain messages is forbidden.

(ii) "Send-to-All Messages." Sending Premier-wide e-mail messages is reserved to e-mail initiated only by those Personnel authorized by written Premier policy to do so.

(iii) Offensive E-mails. Personnel are prohibited from using profanity; or language that is sexually explicit or degrading, harassing, or intimidating in nature; or language that is offensive with regard to any category protected by law or Premier's policies (for example, race and gender); or any other language that is degrading or inappropriate in a professional business setting. Personnel are forbidden from initiating or forwarding "jokes" the content of which fall into the above-proscribed categories of language, images and sounds. Use of computer systems or e-mail to create, acquire, transmit or forward images that are pornographic in nature, or which would be considered inappropriate and indecent in a professional business setting, is strictly prohibited.

(iv) Email Bandwidth "Hogging." Personnel are forbidden from sending large attachments, files and web pages in the conduct of e-mail, such as MP3 audio files or JPEG/AVI graphics or video files, other than for legitimate business purposes. Additionally, Peer-to-Peer file sharing, bit torrent, and other such applications are forbidden. Such attachments and applications place severe demands on Premier's network infrastructure and thus impede the conduct of Premier's business.

(v) Unauthorized Access of E-mail. No Personnel shall attempt to access data, information, or any other electronic code for which the Personnel has not been granted rights of access by the appropriate authority (typically the Director of Human Resources or Premier's General Counsel). Except where specific delegations have been made (e.g., attorney-secretary arrangements), no Personnel shall intentionally intercept, receive, or otherwise disseminate any e-mail for which he or she is not the intended recipient.

K. E-mail Virus and Security

1. No Personnel shall use e-mail to create, propagate or knowingly distribute any computer virus, destructive executable or script, or any other program code, or access or links to them that is intended to cause injury to or failure of Premier's computer systems or networks, or any other external computer systems or networks.

2. Destructive computer viruses can be contained in attached files and embedded in the e-mail messages that do not appear to contain "attachments." Accordingly, all Personnel should exercise caution when opening e-mail from unknown or untrusted sources, and in no case should any Personnel copy or forward e-mail from unknown or untrusted sources except in the performance of their work. Personnel receiving suspicious e-mail will promptly report this occurrence to their local IT Help Desk or to the IT Service Desk.

3. Personnel are prohibited from using e-mail to circulate or forward executables, scripts or any other program code or access links to them that contains destructive active content. Any Personnel who knowingly circulates such material may be held accountable if the content is injurious or destructive to Premier's IS.

L. Internet Use

1. Unacceptable Content and Prohibited Use.

(i) Unknown Sources. Personnel must not download or “open” Internet content from untrusted or unknown sources. Personnel are responsible for any damage to Premier’s IS arising from downloading or opening content from the Internet that may contain destructive computer code.

(ii) Offensive Text, Images or Sounds. Access or display of web pages or sites that use profanity; or images or language (text or spoken) that is sexually explicit or degrading, harassing, or intimidating in nature; or images or language that is offensive with regard to race, religion, national origin, gender, disability, age or sexual orientation; or any other image or language that is inflammatory, degrading or inappropriate in a professional business setting is prohibited. Use of Premier’s computer systems or networks to create, acquire, transmit or forward images that are pornographic in nature, or which would be considered inappropriate in a professional business setting, is strictly prohibited.

(iii) Internet Bandwidth “Hogging.” Receipt of “streaming” audio and/or video over the Internet is prohibited during normal business hours (including during lunch breaks) unless access to such content is necessary for legitimate business purposes. Personal downloads of large data files (1MB or greater) other than audio/video likewise is prohibited unless specifically required in connection with work for or services provided to Premier or its customers. Streaming content may be accessed after or before normal business hours, subject to compliance with this policy.

(iv) Use for Personal Gain. Personnel must not use the Internet to engage in electronic commerce for personal gain – i.e., operation of a part-time business over Premier’s IS. This prohibition does not apply to occasional posting of items with on-line auction services such as eBay™ or occasional checking/executing securities transactions over the Internet.

2. Personal Use.

(i) Reasonable Limits. Premier recognizes that occasional personal use of the IS, including some Internet use for recreation and other personal uses, will occur and this is generally permissible so long as it does not interfere with job duties and responsibilities. All Personnel are required to limit use of the Internet for personal reasons during normal business hours. Any personal use of e-mail and the Internet is governed by these same Policies as when the use is for a legitimate business purpose.

(ii) On-Line Shopping on Personal Time. Any Personnel who uses the Internet to engage in online shopping for personal (i.e., non-Premier) goods or services waives and releases any claims against Premier for liability in connection with any unauthorized credit/debit card use or purchases.

(iii) Fee-Based Research Tools. Personnel are not permitted to use fee-based subscription research tools to perform research that is not required in the conduct of Premier’s business.

3. Browsers and “Third-Party” Internet e-mail.

(i) Premier's IT Department maintains a list of approved regular and secured e-mail tools and Internet browsers. Items not on this list will not receive technical support from Premier's Help Desk or IT Department. Requests to use non-standard tools, or to add applications to this list for business purposes should be presented to the appropriate Privacy Officer and Corporate Information Security Officer for approval prior to use.

(ii) Any Personnel who downloads, installs, or uses any non-approved Internet browser or third-party e-mail application is responsible for any damage that may arise, directly or indirectly, to Premier's computer systems, data and networks.

M. User IDs and Passwords

1. Passwords and User IDs Should be Kept Confidential.

User IDs and passwords and any other form of authentication such as tokens or security certificates help maintain individual accountability for Premier resource usage. Passwords and user IDs should be kept in a location and format that do not jeopardize the security of the data they protect. Passwords and user IDs are considered confidential and must not be disclosed except to authorized Personnel. In addition, the following requirements apply to password and user ID management.

(i) Confidential. Any person assigned a password and other forms of authentication or user ID must keep it confidential and under their direct control. Personnel must not share passwords with others, with the exception of designated support staff to resolve a business issue in a reasonable timeframe. Personnel shall not reveal user IDs and passwords or share other forms of authentication to non-Premier Personnel including family or other household members.

(ii) Secure. All Premier Personnel must take appropriate steps to secure their passwords, authentication devices, and other access credentials. User IDs and passwords are not to be stored in any unsecured or easily accessible location such as post-it notes on a monitor or desk. Passwords must not be saved using automatic password-saving mechanisms, such as those found in some web browsers.

(iii) Unique. Personnel must not use the same passwords for Premier accounts as for other non-Premier accounts (e.g., personal internet accounts, option trading, benefits, etc.). User IDs must be unique and assigned to individual Personnel with the exception of justifiable business accounts approved by the Corporate Information Security Officer or designee.

(iv) Concerns. If Personnel suspect that an account or password has been compromised, Personnel must immediately report the incident to Premier's IT Department. In the event misuse is suspected, users are instructed not to change the password and to immediately notify Premier's IT Department for assistance.

2. Strong Passwords Required

Personnel must select passwords that will protect the Premier IS and they must meet minimum password requirements such a length and content as specified by Premier's IT Department based upon a documented and frequently reviewed risk assessment for their specific use.

N. The Document Management System

1. Premier's Document Management System will comply with the Premier Records Retention Policy.

AS-6. Social Media Policy

A. Purpose

Premier recognizes that web-based technologies used to broadcast messages and participate in dialogues (“Social Media”) are increasingly used to:

- Promote Premier and its products and services to colleagues, customers and the media.
- Share personal opinions and participate in online dialogue as individuals.

Examples of Social Media include tools such as blogs, micro-blogs (such as Twitter), online forums, content-sharing websites, social networking sites (such as LinkedIn and Facebook), collaboration applications (such as Wikipedia), video-sharing applications (such as YouTube) and other digital channels established for online interaction and connection.

The purpose of this Policy is to establish standards and expectations regarding any Premier-related use of Social Media. Premier’s commitment to direct forms of communication supports open dialogue provided such communications adhere to this Policy.

B. General Policies

Personnel must adhere to the following when engaging in Social Media:

1. Appropriate Use of IS Resources. Premier’s Information Systems resources are Premier property dedicated to achieving Premier’s business objectives. All use of IS resources for Social Media activities must be consistent with Premier’s Policies.

2. Speaking on Behalf of Premier. Blogging and other online dialogue are far-reaching forms of communication; distribution is meant for a vast public audience. Personnel are not permitted to claim to be speaking on behalf of Premier or expressing an official Premier position in such communications, except where expressly authorized to do so by Premier.

3. Ethical Conduct. Personnel must not conduct activities that are illegal or contrary to Premier Policies. Always respect the dignity and privacy of colleagues, customers and Premier competitors. Harassing, intimidating, offensive, abusive, threatening, menacing or hostile content communicated through blogs and other forms of online communications is prohibited. Personal Information related to others, including, but not limited to, personal details and pictures, may only be posted with that party’s consent.

4. Transparency of Origin. All Personnel must disclose their connection to Premier in all communications with customers and the media when speaking on behalf of Premier (if authorized to do so) or discussing or recommending Premier or its products or services (even when doing so in one’s “personal” capacity). Personnel must also provide their Premier contact information upon request. Personnel should make it clear that the opinions are theirs alone, are not meant to be construed as individual advice and do not necessarily reflect Premier’s views or positions.

5. Accurate Information. Never knowingly communicate information that is untrue or deceptive. Communications shall be based on current, accurate, complete and relevant data. Premier will take all reasonable steps to assure the validity of information communicated via any channel, but it is each individual poster's responsibility to assure accuracy in the first instance. Anecdotes and opinions must be identified as such.

6. Protection of Protected Data. Personnel shall protect Protected Data as such information represents one of Premier's most important assets. It is never appropriate to share, post, publish or otherwise disclose Protected Data unless Personnel are explicitly authorized to do so. Personnel must not post or otherwise comment in any capacity on Protected Data that may be considered Premier financial information (such as corporate earnings statements, acknowledgement of future business performance, business plans or prospects).

7. Respecting Laws. When posting on a Social Media site, Personnel must respect copyright, privacy, fair use, and other applicable laws, as well as laws governing defamation, discrimination, and harassment.

8. Accountability. Use common sense and keep in mind that posts and comments are often visible to everyone on the Internet and can continue in virtual perpetuity (even after attempts to modify or delete). Personnel should always keep in mind that anything posted may be public for an indefinite period of time. Premier expects that all Personnel will ensure their online communications reflect Premier's brand attributes of openness, responsiveness, integrity and optimism. Personnel found to be in violation of Premier's Policies will be held accountable for the information they share in online activities in violation of Premier's Policies.

C. Discipline and Other Consequences

Any Personnel member who violates this Policy will be subject to appropriate disciplinary action or other remedial measures up to and including termination of employment if warranted under the circumstances and permissible under local law.

D. Waivers

The provisions of this Policy cannot be waived by individual members of Personnel or by Premier management. The Data Stewardship Committee is responsible for reviewing and approving all requests for waivers.

E. Revision and Revocation

This Policy is not a contract between Premier and any Personnel. This Policy may be revised or revoked by Premier at any time, without advance notice or cause.

F. Local Policies and Procedures

Premier operates in many jurisdictions and it is Premier's intention to comply with all applicable legal requirements. Accordingly, if a provision of this Policy conflicts with applicable state or local legal requirements, Premier will, where appropriate, follow the local legal requirement. In addition, Premier may adopt regional or country-specific policies on this subject to accommodate local conditions or legal requirements, and will inform employees in the applicable region or country of the terms of any such policy.

AS-7. Termination of Employment

A. Premier's Obligations

Premier will take all reasonable steps to prevent Personnel whose employment has been terminated from accessing Premier's IS, as well as any Records containing Protected Data. Premier restricts physical and electronic access such Records as soon as possible following the Personnel's separation from employment or termination of business relationship. Premier employees should also refer to Premier HR Termination of Employment Policy.

Prior to termination or immediately thereafter, the Personnel's supervisor must notify Premier's IT Department of the termination and follow the then current internal protocol approved by the Corporate Information Security Officer regarding terminated Personnel.

Premier's IT Department takes reasonable steps to terminate the former Personnel's Access to Premier's IS and Records containing Protected Data as soon as reasonably possible following the Personnel's termination. Termination of Access to Information Systems and Records containing Protected Data includes without limitation:

1. locking computers;
2. repossessing or remote wiping of laptops, PDAs, and other mobile devices for data access, storage, or transmission;
3. deactivating passwords and other user authentication media;
4. deactivating programs for remote login to systems;
5. other reasonable steps to prevent the former Personnel from accessing, storing or transmitting Premier Records containing Protected Data.

B. Obligations of Personnel

Immediately upon termination, former Personnel are prohibited from storing, accessing, or transmitting any Records containing Protected Data. Former Personnel must take all necessary steps to return all documents, whether hardcopy or electronic, containing Protected Data and to prevent future access to Protected Data, including without limitation:

1. Return all paper or electronic Records containing Protected Data;
2. Return all keys, key cards, tokens, identification badges, or other implements allowing physical access to Records containing Protected Data;
3. Return Premier property including without limitation computers, telephones, PDAs, and electronic storage devices;
4. Deactivate all programs for electronic access to Records containing Protected Data;

5. Provide Passwords, User identification data, encryption codes, or other electronic mechanisms for controlling access to Records to appropriate Personnel;

6. Cooperate with Personnel to ensure a smooth and efficient transition of Records.

C. Password/User ID Lockout

To the extent technically feasible, expired user accounts are locked or deleted to prevent unauthorized individuals from attempting to login to systems storing, transmitting, or possessing the capability of accessing Protected Data. All access privileges to expired user accounts are retracted and all computer accounts are locked. Premier Information Systems access is removed prior to termination or at the time Premier informs Personnel that it intends to terminate his or her employment. In the event that Personnel notify Premier of their intention to leave, the Corporate Information Security Officer or IT Department Personnel authorized by the Corporate Information Security Officer shall terminate access to IS storing, transmitting, or possessing the capability of accessing Protected Data as soon as reasonably possible. In the event that Personnel have given notice to terminate their employment with Premier and are still entitled to access Protected Data, Premier limits access to Records containing Protected Data to the extent possible given such Personnel's ongoing job duties.

D. Biometrics/Token Lockout

To the extent technically feasible, Premier changes biometric accounts and retains tokens or security certificates given to Personnel to access Premier's IS. If tokens or certificates can be cloned or are not returned, Premier locks or terminates the accounts of terminated Personnel.

E. Data Destruction

When Premier repurposes or disposes of a terminated Personnel's computer to another Personnel, Premier ensures that all Protected Data on the computer's storage devices are securely destroyed. Methods of performing these actions may include the use of a third party disk scrubbing utility, retention of the hard drive, or destruction of the drive, such as by degaussing, shredding, or other means of physically destroying data through specialized equipment and services.
