

CONTINUITY AND EMERGENCY RESPONSE

PREPARIS EMERGENCY MESSAGING

The safety of our staff, members, suppliers, and visitors is of utmost importance to Premier. To help us manage Premier's response to the severe weather events, periodic civil disturbances, pandemic challenges, and other unexpected emergencies across our footprint, we now have the Preparis emergency response and business continuity communications platform.

WHY PREPARIS?

Premier partnered with Preparis to launch a more robust communication program to support our staff, members, suppliers and visitors for future events and happenings. Preparis gives us a proven, integrated emergency response and business continuity solution that will help us plan, test, train, alert and recover – all in one. It also allows our team to manage incidents from one central platform before, during or after they take place.

HOW IT WORKS

In the case of a life-threatening emergency, office closure or imminent weather threat, staff may receive a text message and/or email from Preparis. Types of situations include:

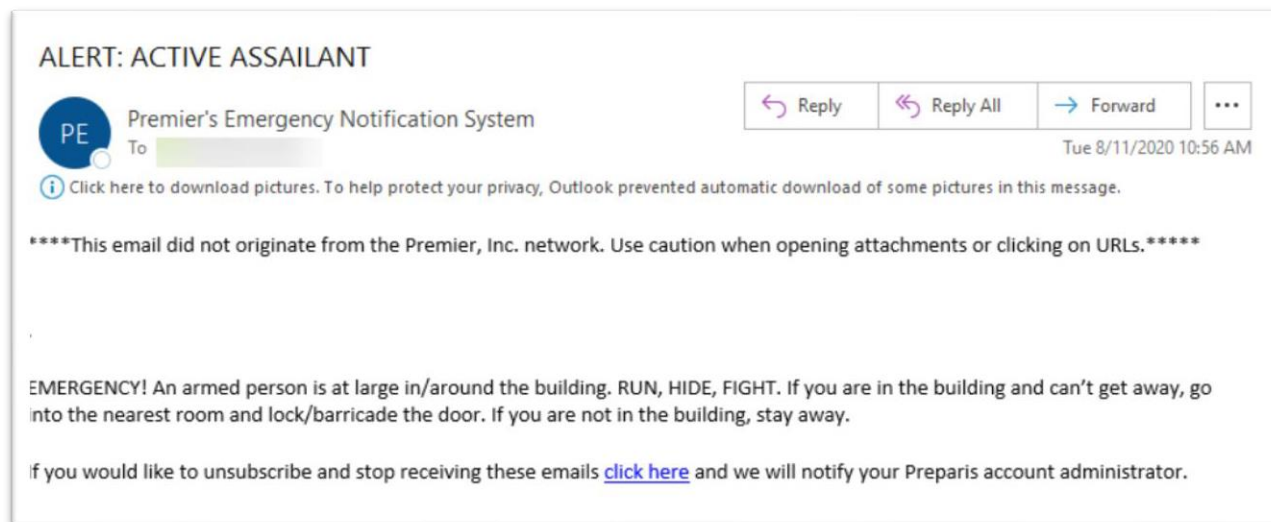

- Active assailant
- Suspicious package
- Bomb threat
- Facility evacuation
- Fire
- Shelter in place
- Suspicious persons
- Civil disturbance
- Office closure
- Weather advisory or warning

Messages will be sent based on the severity of an event to staff at the office location and/or in the region in which the event is located. Preparis alerts should be treated as a high priority by all staff. In addition, where a response is requested, all staff should respond once they are out of immediate danger.

Please review the information below to be prepared to receive and respond to these important messages.

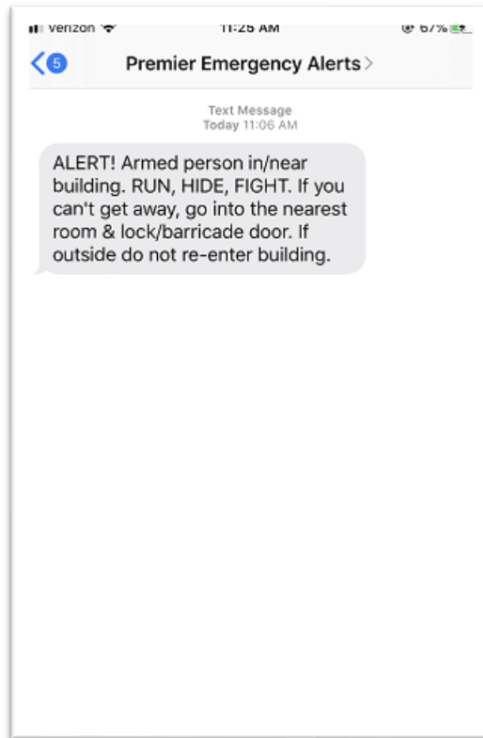

EMAIL ALERTS

Email alerts will be sent to staff at their Premier email addresses and come from Premier's Emergency Notification System with a subject line that is eye-catching and descriptive. In addition, the emails may contain more information about the incident. If the email message requests a reply, please click Reply as soon as it is safe to do so.

TEXT ALERTS

Text alerts will be sent to staff at their mobile phone number listed in Workday. If your mobile number is not in Workday or it needs to be updated, please make time to update this information immediately. If the text message requests a reply, please respond as soon as it is safe to do so.

It is highly recommended that employees save the following two numbers as contacts in their phones and name them Premier Emergency Alerts so the notifications are quickly identifiable as being sent from Premier leadership through Prepara. Prepara texts may come from the following numbers:

- 753-05
- 758-80
